

ANTEC 2010
PRESENTERS /PRESENTATIONS

MIKE PARKHILL: “WE DON’T KNOW WHAT WE DON’T KNOW”

- Presenting a non-technical talk about technology solutions. He will be highlighting talks about community involvement, using the new media of the Internet and crowd sourcing to provide scale and access to language resources to help parents, grandparents, schools and communities to bridge the intergenerational transfer that has been broken.

HELEN BERNARD-WARD: “THE DAILY FIVE”

- Concept of Gail Boushey and Joan Moser based on the idea that our students need to learn independence, or to work on their own during literacy development. During the literacy block in the classroom, students need to work independently on skills while other students are involved in direct instruction with the classroom teacher or other staff member. Teaches the five components which will develop this independence in your students.

ELLEN BUBAR: “UNION OF NEW BRUNSWICK INDIANS TRAINING INSTITUTE: PROGRAMS AND TRAINING OPTIONS “

- Emphasis on the “Early Childhood Education Program” and an overview of the “Soaring Eagles Program”

CYNTHIA WALLACE-CASEY: “FINDING YOUR PLACE IN HISTORY”- STUDENT- CONSTRUCTED MEANING WITH THE PAST

- Through her research, Cynthia explores the phenomena of “Finding Your Place in History”. It will address the interrelationships between personal, collective, and historical memory, with the objective of trying to understand how this concept relates to the development of individual identity. She explores the phenomena of how New Brunswick middle school students draw personal meaning from the past through their interplay with individual, social and cultural spheres of learning.

MARY GINNISH AND GAIL FRANCIS: “ZOOHONICS” AND “K4”

DONALD DONAHUE: “SCHOOL SUCCESS PLANS”

MARJORIE PIERRO, PHYLLIS GOOGOO AND NANCY BERNARD: “THE SPIRIT OF THE CIRCLE”

- Using the Mi’kmaw language as the teaching tool, they will discuss/share with all participants the old ways of learning/teaching, medicine, health, science/environment, language, discipline and respect in the classroom and in our daily interactions with all people. They will emphasize the value of spirituality and the gifts from our creator. They will also give an overview of how to use the 7 habits to build character in every subject area. The presenters hope that the teachers and leaders of the future will leave the circle enlightened and spiritually lifted.

PATSY PAUL-MARTIN: “THE CONFEDERACY OF MAINLAND MI’KMAQ POSTERS”

- Explanatory talk of meaning behind each poster. Participants receive these beautiful laminated posters to take home with them!
